Insights

- Optimize the effectiveness of your entire trading community.
- Get help with the complexity of your operations.
- Rapidly onboard and efficiently manage your partners with DXC Technology.

Trading partners often use disparate systems, ranging from high-volume processing applications to stand-alone PCs—all with various levels of automation. External pressures like security, privacy requirements, and industry regulations can further complicate matters. The potential for error and inconsistencies across environments, processes, support tools, and reporting mechanisms result in higher costs and greater risk for your organization.

Use a streamlined approach

Optimize the effectiveness of your entire trading community, making business interactions easier and more efficient with DXC Technology Trading Partner Community Management Services. Part of our DXC Technology Business Exchange Services (BES), it seamlessly manages e-commerce compliance across your trading partner base and simplifies the critical elements of these transactional relationships.

For example, you can quickly onboard and certify hundreds of partners in a fraction of the time—and at a fraction of the cost—it might take with a traditional manual approach. You can facilitate adopting the processes needed to exchange electronic business documents between trading partners. And with a series of tools that include surveys, email notifications, and task lists, you can effortlessly prepare partners for program updates before rollout.

DXC Technology keeps up with technical issues, so you can focus on growth and innovation.

Gain from our expertise

DXC Technology Trading Partner Community Management Services is a comprehensive trading partner management solution that combines our 25+ years of business-to-business (B2B) onboarding experience with the latest in self-serve, portal-based partner management software.

The service starts with modeling your business and compliance rules and forming a baseline against which processes flow. Once this is established, partners can use the self-serve portal to learn about, develop, test, and implement your required processes—all with very little, if any, manual assistance.

Dashboards provide users with visibility into partner performance and enable “live mode” monitoring of orders, invoices, shipment notifications, and other electronic data interchange (EDI) or non-EDI transactions for compliance and operational issues.

Trading partners can also use the service to register and self-test for compliance certification against specific business rules and compliance guides, not just EDI document syntax. Their information is stored in a database, creating a single source to maintain partner information.

Meet your business objectives

We believe technology should help you meet your business objectives while supporting your IT needs. For this reason, DXC Technology Trading Partner Community Management Services are not tied to any B2B software, value-added network, or other routing infrastructure. This means you get fast, noninvasive implementation without installing local software, developing local integration, or disrupting existing systems and processes.

This service is designed to be flexible and support your changing business realities. And it’s a subscription-based model, giving you a quick return on investment, with a low up-front cost. With its near-infinite scalability, via a Software-as-a-Service (SaaS) platform, you can rapidly adjust resources according to business needs.

It also accommodates your unique and varied partner ecosystem. Often, many small- to medium-sized trading partners struggle to become electronically enabled, and few have in-house IT support. DXC Technology delivers proven EDI/ B2B e-commerce connectivity, integration, and process management solutions to any size organization.
