Portals

Commerce Web portals allow users to operate more efficiently and enforce manual business processes through automated solutions. This solution provides users with easy access to the right information at the right time - informing, organizing, and connecting suppliers, customers and partners with a stable, secure, and cloud-based platform

Key features and benefits:

- Multi-language capability
- Payment processing
- Document reconciliation
- Website branding and customization
- Role-based, permission configurable access
- Improvements in internal and external communications
- Product and user management (administrator controlled)
- Security and encryption

Data translation and integration

- Seamlessly send and receive information between data warehouses, disparate facilities and trading partners which may all require multiple or unique data formats
- Receive purchase orders and shipping schedules directly into sales order processing applications or ERP system databases which are not equipped to handle EDI or unique system formats (flat file formats)

- Issue invoices and Advanced Shipment Notices (ASNs) directly from ERP and accounting systems to customers who require invoices and ASNs in their own EDI or unique system formats (flat file formats)
- Establish process automation of any business documents from any application and integrate with any system or trading partner
- Any-to-Any Document IN / Document OUT translation and integration (EDI, Flat File, XML/CSV)

Web Order Management

DXC Commerce Web's order management functionality enables the creation and management of orders as well as providing an external portal that integrates customers with internal systems and processes, including existing ERP and WMS.
